

Prohibition Partners Launches Interactive Cannabis Hub

Prohibition Partners to Launch Revolutionary 10th Edition of European Cannabis Report with a Dynamic Digital Knowledge Hub

Prohibition Partners is set to mark a major milestone in April 2025 with the launch of the 10th edition of its European Cannabis Report. This edition, however, will be unlike any before, as the company transitions from traditional publishing to a state-of-the-art, interactive digital knowledge hub. This transformation reflects the rapidly evolving landscape of the cannabis industry and ensures that stakeholders can access real-time, data-driven insights like never before.

A Shift from Traditional Publishing to an Always-On, Interactive Digital Hub

The cannabis industry has experienced seismic shifts over the past year, making real-time access to information more critical than ever. Prohibition Partners' new digital platform will act as a one-stop-shop for businesses, policymakers, and patients, offering continuously updated analysis of 31 of the world's most significant cannabis markets. By moving away from static, point-in-time reports, the platform ensures that users always have the most up-to-date regulatory, pricing, and production insights at their fingertips.

Cutting-Edge Features: Interactive Maps, Real-Time Data Visualizations, and Continually Updated Insights

This new platform will leverage the most comprehensive industry datasets, which have been the backbone of Prohibition Partners' analysis since 2017. Key features of the digital hub include:

Interactive maps detailing regulatory landscapes across multiple jurisdictions

Real-time data visualizations showcasing trends in domestic production, imports, and exports

Continuously updated insights on pricing, market developments, and legislative changes

Prohibition Partners CEO Stephen Murphy emphasized the necessity of this transformation.

Examining the European Cannabis Landscape: Major Developments and Emerging Trends

Prohibition Partners' new platform will not only provide a macro view of European cannabis regulations but will also take deep dives into individual markets at the forefront of cannabis reform.

Germany: In April 2024, Germany enacted landmark cannabis legislation that restructured its medical cannabis market and introduced cultivation associations for adult-use cannabis. However, the second-phase pilot programs for adult-use are now under political scrutiny following a government change led by the conservative CDU/CSU party.

Netherlands: On April 7, 2025, the Netherlands will launch Europe's largest-ever adult-use cannabis trial. Ten municipalities, encompassing a population of over 1.6 million, will see coffee shops selling cannabis exclusively sourced from licensed and regulated supply chains—a historic shift in the country's drug policy.

Switzerland: Seven adult-use cannabis trials are currently underway. While full results have yet to be published, early indicators are promising. The Swiss National Council has formally adopted a proposal to draft legislation for full legalization, with initial drafts expected in the coming months.

United Kingdom: The UK medical cannabis market is expanding rapidly, with import volumes doubling year-on-year and the first UK-cultivated medical products entering the market. Germany and the UK are now positioning themselves as key European manufacturing hubs for medical cannabis extracts, signaling a shift toward greater domestic production and accessibility.

A Vital Tool for Investors, Policymakers, and Industry Leaders in an Evolving Market

With a complex and fragmented regulatory landscape across Europe, Prohibition Partners' new digital platform will serve as an indispensable resource. It is for investors, policymakers, operators, and advocates. By offering continuously updated insights in an interactive and easily navigable format, the platform will become the cornerstone for navigating the intricacies of Europe's fast-expanding cannabis ecosystem.

The launch of this dynamic knowledge hub marks a pivotal moment in cannabis industry reporting, ensuring that stakeholders can stay ahead of the curve in an industry that is evolving at an unprecedented pace.

Email: info@cannabisriskmanager.com | Phone: +415-226-4060

© Copyright 2025 Cannabis Risk Manager. All Rights Reserved